FSTEP programme was very insightful; an eye-opening experience with so many valuable takeaways. I am thankful to be given the opportunity to be part of the programme, meeting industry leaders and widen my network within the financial industry. It is definitely a good starting point for graduates who are seeking for positive career growth in the financial industry.

FSTEP has given me plenty of opportunities to network with many other graduates who are also starting out their careers in the financial services industry. These connections have taught me the different working cultures that exist in different financial institutions from where they are from.

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

I am currently in my final year at university. Am I eligible to apply for FSTEP?

Yes, you may apply for FSTEP as long as you have obtained your final academic results and completed your internship by the time FSTEP commences.

Is FSTEP, a full-time or part-time training programme?

FSTEP is a full-time training programme. During the 3-month classroom training, sessions start from 8.30am to 4.30pm on weekdays.

How much do I need to pay to join FSTEP?

FSTEP does not charge any fees. In fact, upon joining FSTEP, trainees will be paid a minimum monthly allowance of RM2,600 (for 3+9-month) by the respective participating financial institutions.

Will I be offered a permanent position after FSTEP?

Generally, FSTEP trainees will be offered a permanent role (based on their performance) after the 9-month on-the-job training with their respective participating financial institutions.

Does FSTEP accept graduates with non-finance qualifications (e.g., Psychology, Engineering and Computer Science)?

We accept graduates with finance and non-finance qualifications, provided they meet our admission requirements.

Do I have to sign a bond?

Generally, you will be bonded throughout the 3+9-month training programme. If you withdraw during the programme, you will need to reimburse a sum of money to your sponsoring financial institution as stated in the contract/ Letter of Offer.
